Table of Contents

Foreword

Acknowledgements

Introduction

Executive summary

Purpose of this handbook

1. Segmentation explained
   1.1 Introduction
   1.2 Tourism Propensity
   1.3 Market Segmentation
   1.4 Segmentation Benefits
   1.5 Segmentation Prerequisites
   1.6 Segmentation Approaches
   1.7 Segmentation Typologies
   1.8 Targeting Segments

2 Current NTO segmentation practices
   2.1 Introduction
   2.2 Quantitative Analysis
      2.2.1 Quantitative Insights
   2.3 Qualitative Analysis
      2.3.1 Information Sources for Segmentation
      2.3.2 Identifying Segments
      2.3.3 Identifying ‘Best Prospects’ Segments
      2.3.4 Selecting ‘Target Segments’
      2.3.5 Developing Marketing Activities for Segments
      2.3.6 Benefits of Market Segmentation
   2.4 Good Practice Examples

3 Segmentation methodologies in action
   3.1 Introduction
   3.2 Socio-demographic
      3.2.1 Case Study 1: How Britain Developed a Product for Indian Visitors
      3.2.2 Case Study 2: ‘Japanese Office Ladies’ and Britain’s Lake District
   3.3 Purpose of Trip Segmentation
      3.3.1 Case Study: Differences Between Business, VFR, Leisure Tourists – an International Visitor Study Analysis
   3.4 Visiting Friends and Relatives (VFR) Segmentation
      3.4.1 Case Study: ‘UKOK’ Campaign
   3.5 Trip Pattern and Structure Segmentation
      3.5.1 Academic Developments in Tracking Trip Patterns and Structures
   3.6 First Time’ versus ‘Repeat Visitors’ Segmentation
      3.6.1 Case Study 1: First Time Versus Repeat Visitor
      3.6.2 Case Study 2: First Time Versus Repeat Visitor
3.7 Benefit Segmentation
3.7.1 Case Study: Monitoring Surfers’ Segment Benefits in Australia
3.8 Activity Segmentation
3.8.1 How Ireland Inventories Activities and Interests as Strategic Priorities
3.9 Motivation Segmentation
3.9.1 State-of-the-Art Academic Research on Motivation
3.10 Lifestyle Segmentation
3.10.1 Case Study 1: United Kingdom Traveller to Australia
3.10.2 Case Study 2: Massachusetts (MOTT) Lifestyle Segmentation Study
3.11 Niche Market Segmentation
3.11.1 Case Study 1: ‘Book Towns’ – Niche Markets in Europe, America and Asia
3.11.2 Case Study 2: ‘The Walking’ Market in Ireland
3.12 Geo-demographic Segmentation
3.12.1 Case Study 1: National Geo-demographic Typologies
3.12.2 Case Study 2: Geo-demographic Analysis of Tourism South East/UK
3.13 Price Segmentation
3.13.1 Assessing the Relative Cost of Destinations
3.14 Media Audience Segmentation
3.14.1 Case Study: Sunday Times Travel Magazine
3.15 Internet Segmentation
3.15.1 Case Study 1: How New Zeeland Targets the Interactive Traveller
3.15.2 Case Study 2: Internet Usage as an Indicator of International Market Potential to Jordan
3.16 Business to Business
3.16.1 Case Study 1: How New Zeeland Segments the Business-to-Business Supply Chain in the US Market
3.16.2 How BTA Targeted Tourism Partnerships for its ‘UKOK’ VFR Campaign
3.17 No Segmentation

4 Practical guide to segmentation

4.1 Introduction
4.2 Defining Tourism Objectives
4.3 Tourism Trends
4.3.1 Quantitative Analyses
4.3.2 Qualitative Analyses
4.4 Market Environment
4.5 Competitive Environment
4.5.1 Competitive Intensity
4.5.2 Competitive Benchmarking
4.6 Product Audit
4.7 Brand Audit
4.8 Segment Research and Intelligence
4.9 Segmenting Markets
4.10 Selecting Target Segments
4.11 Marketing Strategy
4.11.1 Product
4.11.2 Place
4.11.3 Price
4.11.4 Promotion
4.11.5 Resources
4.12 Evaluation and Review
4.12.1 Evaluation
4.12.2 Review
5. Conclusions & Recommendations

Appendix - Questionnaire to NTOs